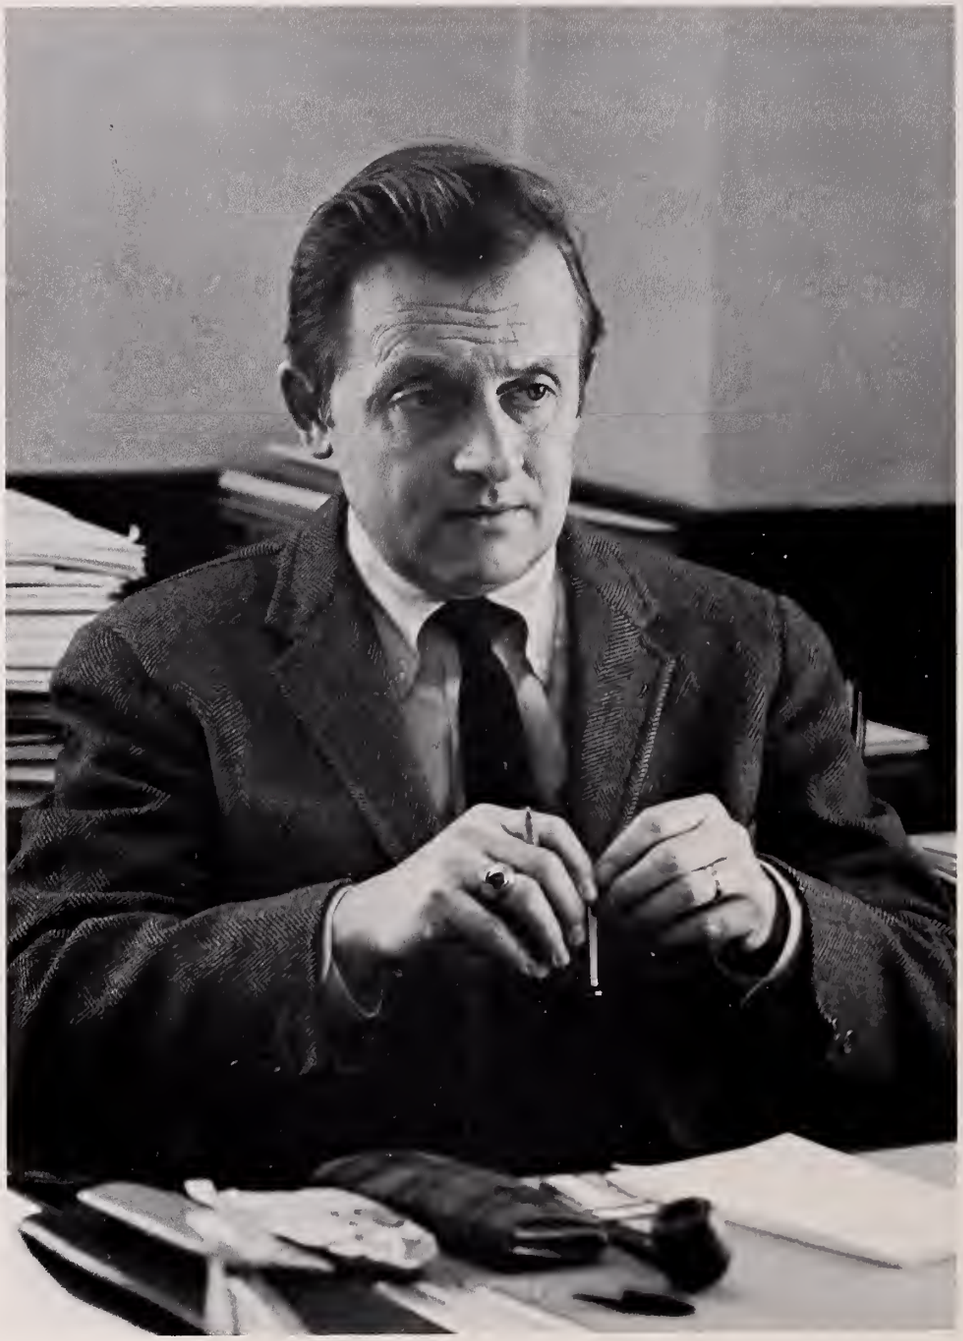
MONTAGE 70

UNIVERSITY OF

MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON



DEDICATION

In recognition of, and appreciation for the value of his efforts as Dean of Faculty at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, we are proud to dedicate Montage 70 to Paul A. Gagnon.

For five years Dean Gagnon has spent much of his time recruiting quality faculty from the most respected colleges and universities throughout the world. When in crisis, he has fought to maintain these members so that our University would continue to have the best possible education for our students.

The Dean also foresaw many of the students' problems and unrests with which the University Community has had to deal, and he has taken active part in settling these differences in the best interests of all.

Dean Gagnon has announced his resignation as Dean of Faculty, effective August 31, 1970, but he will continue at the University in the capacity of Professor of History. The Dean has helped in building the foundation of our University and with his resignation, the University Community should continue to abide by the clarity of vision that Dean Gagnon has had, of what quality education should be.

Man therefore being not yet independent
Enough to stand when ground beneath breaks 'way,
Nor when the sun, upon the earth—its pendent—
Decides to turn a different, careless ray—
Must so assume the role of chief defendent,
Being as ready a prey as able to prey,

And being as nimble to build up as destroy.
And yet a pang romantic and yet true
Says man aught temper what he would enjoy
In reckless glory, not merely so as to
Not gamble all away, as twer a toy,
In all demise, so hold there were no rue

But only if to give ourselves the chance
(Or rather the excuse) to see again,
And start again, before there was advance
The world without the clever sounds of men,
Without the vile, foreign, elements,
But a source of sun, beyond a ringing fen.

THE UNIVERSITY

Aberrant, aimless, ignorant child
don't you realize your fate?
The realms of culture have engulfed you
in a world not of your making.
Your world of fantasy and make-believe is gone.
Your mind is like a cavity whose hollow
is expressed in your blank stare.
Bewildered and naive, your talents are beyond your reach but sadness you will grasp tenaciously and never let go.
So go, cast furtive glances at the world around you
but remember; never enter it lest you should succeed.

I HAVE COME DOWN FOR GOOD

I have come down to earth, and learned
The way to keep my spirits, in the rain,
From washing off; and letting days of clouds
Scare me away with ghostly shadows again—
To hide like Yeats amid those starry crowds.
It's become bearable, my density, my weight.
My vision and my vagaries have spurned
That vague and twilight, pyrotechnic zone,
Which for so many years with fire burned.
All's back in 3-D now. But, it must be said,
(Though my thoughts now have a roof above their head),
It wouldn't do to just describe how great
Assured and wrapped securely is the state
If I failed to mention something else I've known:
Of normality's rigid literal bounds, insipid,
A life spelled out exactly by computer,
No waste, no hazy zones, loose ends, but neuter.
An answer which is too ludicrously vapid
For all its sober dry lack of gray and gloomy.
The crazy kinds of things those days did to me.
Like sadness, without purpose, pitter patter
Of codes upon my roof with nothing the matter
Except the transcendental power of loss
As in some star I never again shall cross.

Oh curse dates! Oh curse the terrible buoys
That have to bear the brunt of miles lapped
Unnoticed! Let birth and death mark time!
And in between let night and afternoon,
All day and morning sail the passing flags
In sunsets flaming, orange afternoons
Of winter dusk, summer sultry skies!
The raspy orange of breezy trees in fall.
And let the little sparks that venture out
Upon the cold and blackly distant night
Of the universal compass, let those sparks
Speak to us of time spent, gladly, delightedly,
Relaxed and staid in knowing it is passed
As best time can, (though sad to see it go),
And for what it has, in molding out of time,
And happily so, be more aware of time,
Strongly, and in a positive sense, well spent;
And yet be more aware with such events
Of fleeting riches, life's best essences,
Of time taking things gone by, the present
Being nothing more than that which melts
Immediately upon the tongue! — Be aware
More than before, now in a negative sense,
Of time's loss, carrying away real things,
That here goes by with, in a way, less sorrow,
For empty seats and efforts never tried.

Editorial Note

Organizing a functioning staff in order to produce Montage '70 has been a great challenge. In addition, because of our late start, time was a limiting factor. As a result, I and the Montage '70 editorial board realized that at best we could only try to capture a few quick impressions of the school and its urban environment. In executing even this limited goal we needed exceptional cooperation and dedication from everyone involved in the production of Montage '70.

I would, therefore, like to take this opportunity to thank all the people who helped make this publication possible. I would like to extend special thanks to Professor Lewis Roberts, our Yearbook advisor, Mrs. Evans, Mr. Gerald Sullivan, Stevens Studios of Bangor, Maine, Woodland Publishing Co. of Watertown, Mass. and Mrs. Sheidon Ehrich of International Famous Artists.
